

Rapporti mediterranei, pratiche documentarie, presenze veneziane: le reti economiche e culturali (XIV-XVI sec.)

MEDITERRANEAN RELATIONS, DOCUMENTARY PRACTICES AND THE PRESENCE OF VENICE: ECONOMIC AND CULTURAL NETWORKS (14-16TH CENT.)

10 - 12 settembre 2015

Istituto Veneto di Scienze, Lettere ed Arti

Sergei KARPOV, Moscow State University

Venetian Tana. Economic life and social relations: aftermath of the great crisis of the mid-14th

Abstract

- New information on topography and internal situation in the most remote Venetian settlement of the Latin Romania
- Christian churches and cemeteries in Tana.
- Who were Venetian merchants in Tana? An attempt of localisation and identification.
- Means of survival and self-protection in a hostile surrounding.
- Character of money circulation and exchanges of wares in the Don/Black Sea Region. Value and significance of invested capitals.
- What housewares belonged to Venetian citizens in Tana? A unique case of circulation of portolano maps of the Black Sea.
- How did a Venetian notary work also for the Genoese partners and rivals of Venetians?
- New data on the great plague epidemic in 1362.
- Political events. A scarcely known Venetian embassy in the Golden Horde in 1363.